This is to say Mrs. Zachary has no right of possession or control over her children, although she has suffered and almost died to all because the voters tell them they have to do so. This is the way such men look upon women, and this attitude will remain until a law is enacted (a Georgia legislation which will give the women of Georgia an equal chance in the suffrage; in other words, they will not do their duty, then the United States constitution will be

SEVERAL charming late Summer gowns are shown here. The first, which is worn by the girl who pours, is of pale blue charmeuse. The blouse is trimmed with deep collar and cuffs of white charmeuse, embroidered with wild roses. Crossed bands of pale blue tulle are finished at the waist with a smart black velvet bow. Frills finish the neck and sleeves.

The next figure wears a becoming gown of cool grape green voile. The collar and cuffs of eyelet embroidery are edged with plaited tulle of the same shade. The surplice waist and the overskirt are embroidered in eyelet work. A large pond lily is used effectively in catching the drapery of the overskirt, while another is woven into the belt.

A simple frock of lavender crepe is worn by the hostess, while the remaining figure is gowned in white Crepe de Chine, the blouse cut surplice, and worn over an effective lace yoke. An Oriental sash of arrow-berry Crepe de Chine is tied low at the left side. A white tulle hat with low black velvet crown completes the costume.

Tallulah Lake at Last Is Formed, After Years of Work; Waters Are Banked 90 Feet High and Turned Into Tunnel

View of the construction work now in progress on the upper dam, at Mathis, Ga., six miles above Tallulah falls, where a lake will be formed eight miles long. On top of the dam is the public roadway, the site of the former bridge leading over the chasm being submerged by the lake. The picture is taken from a point north of the dam and besides showing the height of the structure shows how the trees have been cleared away for the site of the lake. This is the last part of the power plant work, practically everything else being now complete.

This is the first picture ever published of the Tallulah lake! The water was still rising when the picture was taken, and lacked only six feet of being at its height—90 feet above the river bed. Just at the right of the dam is seen the entrance of the tunnel, where the river begins its dark underground journey of a mile and a half.

The completed Tallulah dam, photographed from the side of the gorge at a point below the lake, showing the water pouring through the sluice gates. On top of the dam is the public roadway, the site of the former bridge leading over the chasm being submerged by the lake. When the plant is in operation the water that remains from the tunnel flow, if there is any, will roll over the dam through the openings below the roadway.

Here stands the completed power house, with three of the big 5-foot penstock tubes, already finished, leading up the side of the gorge into the reservoir into which the tunnel empties. To the left of the tubes is the incline railway. As soon as the generators and transformers are finished the operation of the plant will begin.

BY J. WALTER LECRAW
Staff Correspondent of The Constitution.

Tallulah Falls, August 16.—Special.—This week has seen the greatest and most sudden change in all the spectacular history of Tallulah Falls. The sluice gates in the giant dam have been closed and at last the much heralded lake has been formed. Ninety feet above the river bed the waters of the turbulent Tallulah have been banked and turned aside into the long and tortuous tunnel that leads through the solid rock of the mountain to the power plant at the foot of the falls.

Winding through the rocky gorge for half a mile northward from the dam, the lake at Tallulah has furnished a new and interesting sight during the past few days to the hundreds of summer visitors who are now in this section of the Blue Ridge mountains.

While the lake was being formed the water was not taken entirely off the falls. All the sluice gates were closed except one and this let enough water through the dam to run the compressor plant beside Tempesta and to keep the falls from becoming dry. The remaining force of the river remained above the dam to swell the lake. It was last Monday that the level of the lake began slowly to rise, and for 48 hours it crept upward and upward, crawling higher in the gorge, until on Wednesday it reached its full height and rolled tumultuously over the top of the dam.

NINETY FEET ABOVE RIVER BED!

An interesting picture has this week for those who have from the beginning watched the development of the enormous water power project at Tallulah Falls. Where once the waters of the mountain river tumbled madly over a rocky river bed, they are now banked 90 feet high! The surface of the lake is smooth and gives no suspicion of the murky depths in which the waters move below. Just beside the dam is the mouth of the tunnel which is now of course below the level of the lake. The tunnel itself, 14 feet high, is filled with water throughout its entire length of nearly two miles, the water being at present stopped at the lower end of the tunnel. The entrance to the tunnel is protected by an iron framework through which the water passes from the lake and which serves to keep all objects from being drawn into that long underground canal.

But though the dam stands completed and the tunnel is filled with water, the $5,000,000 electric plant is not yet in operation. Work continues day after day on the five electric generators, each of which will produce 15,000 horse power, and on the five enormous tubes that will carry the water down the gorge into the turbines.

PLANT TO OPERATE BY SEPTEMBER

Engineers at Tallulah declare that at least one of the five generators will be finished by September 1, and the water will then be turned into one of the tubes, starting the first operation of the plant. Power will probably not be furnished to Atlanta until November or December, but the company is under contract to provide power over its South Carolina line by the first of September. In the meantime the tremendous force of the Tallulah river, standing in the tunnel at the top of the mountain, is merely waiting to be turned loose upon the power plant. The outlet of the tunnel, high up on the side of the gorge, is 600 feet above the level of the power house. In the pent-up waters held thus at the top of the chasm is represented 30,000 horse power, which will turn the wheels and spindles of Georgia now within a very few weeks.

It is as if a mighty force of 90,000 horses stood enclashed at the mountain top, prancing and restless to be unleashed! They have been fed and groomed and their bridles set. They are merely waiting for the course to be finished over which they will plunge down the mountain side. It is an odd and interesting situation that has seen no equal in the history of Georgia.

But what of the falls? This is a question that naturally arises because of the controversy waged over the fate of this little Switzerland of Georgia! While the lake was filling up, the river flowed at half force over the five big waterfalls in the Tallulah gorge, retaining part of the splendor of the falls but losing much of the spectacular through their decrease in size. When the lake reached its height and the tunnel was filled, the river then regained its natural size.

WHAT WILL BECOME OF THE FALLS?

What will happen when the full force of the river is turned into the power plant is still a matter that is variously argued. It is declared that there will always be some water flowing over the falls and that except in the driest season the falls will be as large and spectacular as they have been during the past week, when the river was at half flow. It is also claimed by many, including the conservationists, that practically the entire river will be left to the falls and they will be shorn of all their beauty.

FOR ONE DAY

THE FALLS WERE DRY

Tallulah has already seen one day on which the precipitous rocks of the falls were dry! It was last Sunday, when the power company was an experiment closed the dam entirely and raised the lake to the level of the bottom of the tunnel. It was done on Sunday, as the compressor plant had to run every weekday. The closing of the dam took all the water from the river bed for the day. Tempesta, Hurricane, Bridal Veil, Oceana, I'ean Doo—all were unlabeled as meaningless rocks, shorn of the spray and ponderous volume of water that had poured over them for ages. Only a few pools of water around the falls, and the springs that tumbled down the side of the gorge, furnished a trickling stream that dropped mournfully over the giant rocks.

"Devil's Jail" itself, within whose surging whirlpools a young engineer was drawn to his death last summer, became quiescent. It was a sight that turned the hearts of the oldest inhabitants to sorrow, and as one of them put it, "The day seemed like the funeral of a lifetime friend to me."

But the very next day the water was tumbling over the falls again, and the compressor plant beside Tempesta fall was again being operated, to furnish compressed air for the machines at work on the various parts of the work. This is the question that is gripping the minds of those awaiting the final result.

WHAT WILL REALLY BECOME OF THE FALLS WHEN THE PLANT AT LAST RUNS FULL FORCE?

MATHIS DAM

PROGRESSING FAST

Work on the upper dam at Mathis, Ga., six miles north of Tallulah, is also progressing rapidly, though it is far behind the work at the main plant. The foundation for the dam has been completed and the great concrete structure is growing rapidly. Here the Tallulah river will be turned into a long and narrow lake of eight miles length, winding around the hills of old Rabun county. This lake will act as a storage reservoir, to send additional supply of water to the power plant when the river grows too small at dry seasons.

Though the main lake at the tunnel is small and has very steep banks, the Mathis lake will be large and beautiful, with scores of beautiful sites for summer cottages along its green banks. This part of Rabun county will probably reap the greatest benefit in summer resort trade as a result of the construction work. All this section, however, is on the boom, and the greatest optimism prevails among the people living here, and with the rapid development that will follow the operation of the $5,000,000 power plant, a great future is predicted for this beautiful Blue Ridge section of Georgia.

CONSERVATION SOCIETY PLANNING NEW SUIT

Just what will be the final outcome of the state's suit against the power company is one of the matters that is still somewhat in doubt. After the power company won the hearing in the Rabun county courthouse at Clayton, Ga., and the presiding judge refused to grant the state's appeal for a new trial, the question was then taken to the supreme court, where it is now pending. It will receive its final hearing in October.

Members of the Tallulah Falls Conservation society, which prompted the state to bring suit against the company, declared a few days ago, however, that they had not yet means given up the fight. A prominent member made the statement that new court action was imminent, and that announcement would probably be made in the press within a week or two. Meanwhile the work goes on unwaveringly, and as the $5,000,000 plant nears completion it now seems a certainty that conservation enterprise will actually begin operation within the new future, in spite of the untiring battle that has been waged against it.

HAVE used this pattern because its extreme simplicity is pleasing. It may be used on white, or colored fabric. It is prettiest in all white, then one does not run the risk of seeing the work faded. Eyelid work is indicated by circles. These are made by puncturing the holes to their extreme edge. Flowers are embroidered with one thread the better to insure the perfect diamond shape. All foliage leaves should be made in satin embroidery.

A handsome example of embroidery is done in white floss upon tan, brown or yellow linen. Nutbrown brown, cream embroidered in white is strikingly beautiful in a dress worn by a little brown-eyed miss.

ODDS AND ENDS

IN slicing pineapple it is well to remember not to use the same knife for slicing that has been used in peeling. The rind contains an acid that is apt to cause a sore mouth and swollen lips.

WHEN washing mauve prints and muslins put a little soda in the water in which they are washed in order to keep the color from running out. Soda is said to have exactly the opposite effect on mauve that it has on other dyes.

FOR Washing baby's bannets and many other purposes natural soft water is preferred to artificial soft water. To secure soft water for these purposes use the water in your refrigerator pan. It always is soft.

THE celery knobs that grocers sell are one of the popular vegetables and are very wholesome. They are boiled like turnips, scraped, cut into small pieces and mixed with a French dressing for a salad, or tarte a white sauce thrown over them and are served as an entree.

A SPOT on polished wood caused by a hot dish being placed upon it will disappear if it is covered with a little salad oil and salt, which after it has been left on for an hour or so, should then be rubbed off with a soft cloth.

SILK stockings will look their best if they are washed in bran water, not with soap. To each quart of water allow two heaped teaspoonfuls of bran, boil it for about ten minutes, then strain out the bran.

TO polish amber rub it with whitening moistened with water, and finally with a little olive oil laid on, and well polished off with a piece of flannel.

WHEN roasting meat in an open pan, wet a clean white muslin cloth and lay over the top of the meat. It will keep from getting hard and does not require basting so often, and the meat is much nicer.

WHEN ironing box-plated waists and the plaits are twisted together with the starching, make a stick of wood and insert in the waist to open it up, and you will find the plaits can be ironed quite readily.

A FLAT brass button sewed on the corner of a dishcloth will be a great help in washing dishes. It can be used as a "scratcher," and will not injure the finest china.

SMALL TRUNKS

ONE of the best, in thirty-six inch and smaller sizes, is several inches lower than an ordinary trunk and about the same width. A second, equally well liked, is longer, narrower and about six inches higher shaped more like a shirt waist box. The first has a lower tray, a tray divided in sections in the cover, and a rack between for skirts and waists, which is swung upright on hinges at one end of the trunk to get at the lower tray and to pack and unpack. Gowns can be slipped over the hangers and the rack lowered into the trunk in half the time it would take to pack in the ordinary way and with less creasing. It has been found.

The narrower, higher, week end model is divided into a long, lower tray, a hat box and several small drawers one above the other. Trunks shaped like square hat boxes show more variety than any other style. Some open almost in the middle, the upper half containing a deep tray and a small drawer or two, the lower half being reserved for hats. One design has a tray as described and one end of the hat box is partitioned off for shoes.

FOR A RAINY DAY

FASHIONS and customs have changed overwheemingly in the past few years, but in no other respect more than in the rainy day garb. Every one remembers with many a hearty laugh the way people used to look out of the window and say, in a resigned way: "Well, it's raining." That meant very positively that good looking clothes were not in decent taste in such weather and one must wear a mackintosh—there were a more hideous garment made of—beesless rubbers, dark clothes, shabby shoes and one's oldest hat. And who ever did enjoy anything in her oldest hat! Nowadays the girl who looks on the cheerful side of things and rather enjoys the rainy day for a change has a bright red or purple hat that, of course, has no feathers, but is plain and serviceable, but which she knows is most becoming. She wears her tailored suit, add another bit of color, she carries toward chasing away the blue on a red or purple silk umbrella. It keeps the rain off just as well as a black one and it just makes you feel just as good looking as those she better. It is wonderful what a difference for sunny days, and often, to come. SCORE CARDS

If you want to make inexpensive and handsome score cards, buy some floral wall paper. Roses and carnations are both very effective. One way is to paste the floral paper smoothly on water color paper, which costs 5 cents a sheet. When the paste is thoroughly dry, cut into odd shapes and fasten to a card. Attach a pencil, and letter with a small brush. No one would ever suspect that they are not hand-painted.

EXERCISES BEGET MORALS

BY MRS. M. C. MCNE.

A REALIZATION of this fact is at the bottom of much of the agitation for parks and recreation grounds in the larger cities that is so conspicuous an element of modern municipal improvement. Indoor life is productive of all the ills induced by excessive and untimely air-bathing, that scourge of the summer months, and the white-faced multitudes to be met with everywhere should be encouraged for the sake of health to seek the green field and the seashore, and so on in for statistics of some kind.

No movement of modern times interests the far-sighted more than the village associations, just beginning to be operative, which have for their object the establishment of communities (with schools, churches, manufactures, and opportunities for agriculture on extensive tracts of land) for the purpose of giving the poor classes a chance on the one hand to get away from the unhealthy and immoral conditions of life in a crowded city, and on the other to escape the barrenness and isolation of the usual type of country life. Such garden associations, as they are called, deserve the hearty support of all who are concerned with the spiritual and material well-being of their fellow-men. The weather class in the community have for some time shunned the city for fully six months of the year, and the middle classes remain out of town later and later in the autumn. But these classes constitute only a very small minority compared to the aggregate populations of cities and nations, and it is in these millions of people that must be preached the gospel of fresh air and outdoor exercise as way of physical and moral regeneration.

BE OPEN MINDED

BY EDNA EGAN.

WHETHER you have gone to school or not, whether you have had the advantages of book learning or not, there is one thing that will mark you as an educated person. Are you open minded? Are you free from trailing prejudices around you? According to John Van Dyke, the art critic, "raising ourselves above prejudices is not easy of accomplishment." It is what is broadly called education—a definite attainment to many—an absolute impossibility to some.

If you have never taken stock of your prejudices, it may be that you do not know how many are clinging to you. You may have one against the person with a foreign accent. Or against a certain author's whole collection of works, merely because you disapproved of a certain remark found in one of them. It may be against the profession of the actress. Certainly, any one of these marks you as provincial.

Ridiculous as it sounds, the following story is true. A friend of mine was motoring through a small southern town. "Can you tell me where 'the B's live'?" she asked of a kindly looking woman sitting on a porch. "The ministers'—the latter asked, with interest.

"No," said my friend. "These are useless people."

"Oh!" came her frigid response. "They must be so and so," mentioning a different denomination of religion than hers. "I do not know them."

And she refused to give any more information.

Now, that was a small town. She would not help knowing where any one in her social class lived. But because she had a prejudice against the family's religious denomination, she refused to acknowledge their existence. No matter how much book learning she had, no matter what her superficial culture, it would be difficult to call her an educated woman in the broadest sense of the word. Yet, doubtless, she considered herself such. Every prejudice is a veil between you and the reality of life.

In housecleaning times it is often difficult to handle mattresses and get them out into the open air for thorough beating. One housekeeper has overcome this dilemma, about six inches long, to each side of the mattress to serve as handles. With these two women can carry the heaviest mattress with comparative ease.

Conzelman and Thompson Go Back to the Majors

As predicted in Friday's Constitution, Joe Conzelman and Carl Thompson were recalled by the clubs that loaned them to the Crackers under optional agreement.

Notice of the recall was given to the Crackers on Friday, the last day optional recalls would stick, and both report to their clubs at the end of the Southern league season.

Conzelman was recalled by the Pittsburgh Pirates and Thompson by the New York Yankees.

Extract from an address delivered by Miss Mildred Lewis Rutherford, historian general at the U. D. C. convention in Washington D. C. This advertisement in the Washington Post of 1901:

There comes to me a memory—the memory of our Dr. J. B. Lamar Curry, and what he said years ago, that history as it is now written is most unjust to southern people. If it is accepted as it is written, will consign the south to infamy.

Therefore, we cannot sell books at a profit. We must sell them at a loss to northern publishers. This throws the responsibility upon the moneyed men who own the presses, and it is not white to spend their means in having publishing houses for southern writers. Good Looking Fashions in Millinery and Coiffure

MOORING HAT.

THE fashions that appear at the end of the summer, usually point more or less indirectly to the modes that will prevail during the early Autumn. In the illustrations shown on this page are several excellent models. The small close fitting hat with its simple decoration displayed in the center of the page, the smart Colonial hat of black velvet with ornament of white ostrich tips, and the modest mourning chapeau adorned with berries and foliage in dull black, are all refined and becoming. The method of wearing the hair as depicted in the upper right hand corner of the page, is very youthful and graceful, and will be popular with the girl with a well shaped forehead. The other coiffure shows the braid wrapped about the head in coronet style, a fashion which will continue in its popularity.

"I realize I must take a stand with regard to the management of the club," Tinker said. "I have always been a great disappointment to all concerned, and I have held off as long as I could because I felt I am not a success myself, that the club has not been making money, owing to its low standing, and therefore, that it was up to me to stand for some things I would not otherwise have stood for. But I have found that our players were being sold outright to minor league teams."

L. P. Rawlings, of Milan, Ga., made his first trip to the Atlanta market during the convention. He bought a nice bill from John Slivey & Co., and stated that he would be a more delegate at every future convention.

The Capital City Tobacco company stated that the Southern cigarette people are going to give away a safety razor with every package of cigarettes starting tomorrow.

W. M. Dunlap, cashier with Fain & Stamps, goes to Warrenton next week for a short vacation, accompanied by Mrs. Dunlap. He states that he will "see some."

W. T. Culpepper, bookkeeper with Fain & Stamps, came back Saturday after a ten-day vacation at Borden Springs, Ga.

The A. M. Robinson company report themselves entirely satisfied with results. They entertained many guests and sold many goods during the convention.

There were many buyers at the Ward-White company this week. This is the second week of their closing out sales. Mr. Ward states that at the present rate their goods will all be gone before the thirty-day limit is up.

W. E. Rhumpp, with the All Star Manufacturing company, has been kept more than busy waiting on the house trade during the convention.

Bigger point for point Better dollar for dollar

THE 1914 Overland is the most wonderful car of the new season. And the price is reduced again.

The motor is more powerful; the wheelbase is longer; the tonneau is larger; the equipment is more complete, better and costlier than ever. In every respect Overland value has been increased while the price has been decreased.

The manufacturers have turned their enormous facilities over to the building of this one model. In no other way could such value be secured.

The production has been increased to 50,000 cars. There is an even stricter practice of the well-known Overland manufacturing economies. And this means a greater car at less cost to you.

So finely drawn is the big 1914 Overland production plan, that 50,000 cars will be built; 10,000 men will be kept busy all the year 'round, every wheel of the $4,000,000 worth of most modern machinery kept in constant operation, and never a moment's hesitation permitted in a plant that covers more than 100 acres of ground.

This is the way the Overland makes possible a $1200 value for $950.

Their great business is built on established standard-quality.

System is the watchword in the Overland factories—and you get the benefit.

We want inquiries from live, hustling agents who are anxious to handle this car on a legitimate businesslike basis.

This car is now touring the state. Wire request at once for a visit.

We have the new Model 79 Overlands on our sales-room floor. We urge you to see this new model at once. Ride in the car; feel what a difference the big 114-inch wheelbase makes; note the car's entirely changed appearance. It is neater, prettier than ever—and that means the handsomest car of the year.

The long wheelbase gives increased riding comfort.

The improved Overland motor is rated at 35 horsepower—plenty of power to give satisfying comfort and speed. Inspect the many motor refinements which make the power plant more flexible and accessible.

You'll find a most efficient and reliable electric lighting system on the new Overland. This costly addition to equipment is worthy of a $1500 car.

The new Overland body has a handsome finish—beautiful rich, dark Brewster green. The trimmings are of heavy nickel and aluminum. And the big graceful cowl dash gives to the car an appearance of dignity vainly sought in many other cars of higher price.

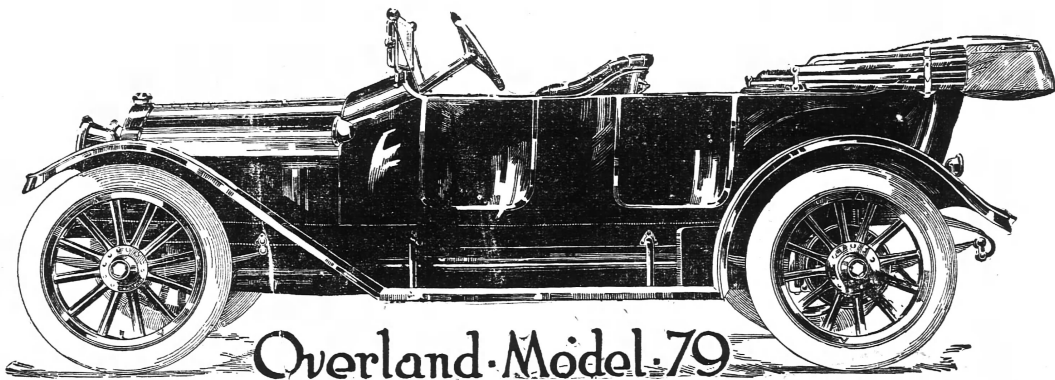

Examine the spacious tonneau; note the big, soft, deep and luxurious folds of upholstery. The new Overland is bigger and better; we can show you point for point where it is the best your money can buy.

You can see it today.

Gentlemen:-

I notice with a great deal of pleasure your new classification system to be used in your Classified Columns.

It will enable us to promptly locate the thing for which we may be after and avoid the necessity of reading endless numbers of little ads entirely foreign to what we are seeking.

I think that you will find the result will be that the efficiency of your columns will be greatly enhanced and that you will have many more readers who will look to your columns to supply their wants. It will not be necessary to read "Automobile for sale", "Husband wanted" and "Second hand furniture for sale" when you want to employ a stenographer.

Gentlemen:-

I was glad to read your page announcement in Sunday's paper regarding your system of classifying "Want Ads".

The newspaper which publishes a classified page in the true sense of the word, serves the people (The Readers), but that paper which does not, makes money for itself and gives the reader a puzzle page, and lessens the benefit to both advertiser and reader.

Your announcement is a move in the right direction, and will make it possible to advertise any article from a dress suit, to a cork leg, real estate, old stoves and every need of life, and will aid the reader in locating any one of these articles if he so desires.

Glad to see you so progressive,

Yours truly,

Edw. P. Ansley

These Men Made Fortunes Out of Want Ads!

You Can Do the Same—
If You'll Use Them

Read What They Say About The Constitution's
System of Classifying Its Want Ads, So You Can Find What You Want When You Want It

Turn to the want ad pages now and see for yourself how easy it is to find anything your heart desires.

The index to the want ads is on the first page of the want ad section.

If it's a room you want, look under the classification "FOR RENT---Rooms." You'll find the furnished and unfurnished rooms classified separately, and the north side rooms separated from the south side, etc.

If it's an automobile, look under "AUTOMOBILES---For Sale." You won't find any rooms for rent there, but you will find plenty of good new and second-hand automobiles, which the other fellow can't use, but which might answer your purpose exactly.

Haven't you something you'd like to trade? Look in the "BARTER AND EXCHANGE" column. You may be able to make a trade for the very thing you now feel you can't afford to buy.

And in the "HOUSEHOLD GOODS" column there's enough furniture and house furnishings offered for sale to actually stock a store. It's all good, too, or the advertiser wouldn't pay real money to tell you about it.

REMEMBER---All of these ads in The Constitution are paid for. That's why you're not wasting your time in answering them.

That's one of the many reasons why you too would get quick results if you should advertise your wants in The Constitution.

Atlanta, Georgia.

Gentlemen:

I want to take this occasion to compliment you on the progress you are showing in your classified columns. Your announcement of last Sunday in which you state the Want Ads in the Constitution will be placed only under the classification where they rightfully belong, is a move in the right direction.

I have been advocating this for some time and am sure that your readers and advertisers throughout Atlanta will respond readily to your new system of classification.

The index which you are printing on your first Want Ad page is a particularly good idea.

Yours truly,

Chas. P. Glover

President Believes Substantial Progress Has Been Made Huerta Expected to Reply to Envoy Lind's Statement.

Mexico City, August 16.—(Special.) Gamboa, the Mexican minister of foreign affairs tonight gave out the first statement made by any Mexican official regarding the message sent to provisional President Huerta by President Wilson through his personal representative, John Lind.

Minister Gamboa said the Mexican government would give consideration to the communication presented by Mr. Lind and after fully discussing it would make a reply.

This procedure is contrary to the opinion held generally here the past week regarding the Mexican government's attitude. It being assumed in view of General Huerta's note of August 6, in which he characterized Mr. Lind as a "person of no account," that he had brought proper evidence and recognition of the Huerta administration, that any message to the contrary would be ignored.

Washington, August 16.—(Special.) Progress has been achieved in the present administration, officials here, to have been in the discharge of this delicate mission to Mexico. They feel the American embassy adviser at least has made a considerable effort to bring about a settlement of the Mexican situation. The government has already made a number of concessions, and it is believed that the situation will be improved in the near future.

Huerta Advised to Make Concessions. The delivery of this preliminary communication, after some delay, is a step in the right direction, according to the first communication. It is expected that the Mexican government will be able to make a reply to the American embassy adviser in the near future. The government has already made a number of concessions, and it is believed that the situation will be improved in the near future.

Foreign Powers to be Informed. Not the slightest intention of any kind of intervention has been made by the representatives of foreign powers. It is expected, however, that as soon as the Mexican government reaches a decision as to whether to accept the American proposal, the representatives in Mexico will be informed of the decision.

Silly Session Statesmanship. From the beginning of the Mexican revolution, the statesmanship of the American government has been a subject of much discussion. It is believed that the American government has shown a high degree of statesmanship in its handling of the Mexican situation.

Senator Lodge has a long talk with Secretary Bryan tonight about Mexican affairs. In view of his purpose to stand squarely with the president, providing the Mexican difficulty could be kept out of the hands of the statesmen, it is believed to forebode a hostile attitude between the senator and the secretary.

LYNCHERS RECOGNIZED; INDICTMENTS EXPECTED

Grand Jury of Calhoun County Investigating Killing of Negro at Morgan.

Sylvester, Ga., August 16.—(Special.) The grand jury of Calhoun County, called in special session by Judge Frank Park immediately after the lynching of Son Lovett, a negro, charged with murder, at Morgan, Thursday night, is reported to have evidence against members of the mob that took part in the crime, and it is believed that a special term of court will be called to try those who may be indicted.

Several prominent citizens of Shelburne and others from Calhoun and Terrell counties are said to have been recognized when their names were known off in a struggle there with Deputy Sheriff W. L. Calhoun. No one was injured in the case between the guards in charge of the negro and the members of the mob.

It is reported that the guards, when questioned before the grand jury, were aware that members of the mob gave the signal of a lynch mob, and that when they approached to get the negro.

Supporters that the lynch mob made sarcastic remarks to Judge Park when he pleaded with them to spare the negro are untrue. Although they pleaded in their effort to kill the black, the lynch mob maintained a respectful attitude toward the judge.

If you can't get capital interested there is something wrong with your money. Anything that is reasonably certain to pay 6 percent interest capital is worth the trouble.

By looking carefully you will find more than you thought that is certain.
